Keeping Our Faculties is a year-long, mutual mentoring seminar designed to enhance the professional growth of early-career women faculty. Participants in this program meet once a month with a senior woman professor to:

• Build a cross-campus peer support network
• Obtain critical information about requirements for tenure and promotion from faculty who have served on the promotion and tenure committee and/or have recently gone through the process
• Develop and refine career advancement materials such as personal statement, teaching portfolio, and vita, and consider one’s personal brand as a scholar
• Discuss other key aspects of career success at UMD such as making time for research, negotiation and conflict resolution, teaching, and balance of work and life priorities

This seminar begins in September 2020. Sessions will take place monthly on Tuesdays.

Please send a brief email of interest to: dkculpep@umd.edu. Applications can be submitted now and will be accepted until the program is filled. For best consideration, apply by July 15, 2020.
Keeping Our Faculties will be led by Linda Steiner, Professor in the College of Journalism at the University of Maryland and the editor of Journalism & Communication Monographs. Her co-authored or co-edited books include Women and Journalism (2004); Key Concepts in Critical-Cultural Studies (2010), Routledge Companion to Media and Gender (2013); The Handbook of Gender and War (2016); and Race, News, and the City: Uncovering Baltimore (2017); Journalism, Gender and Power is forthcoming. She has published over 100 book chapters and refereed journal articles. Dr. Steiner served as president of the Association for Education in Journalism and Mass Communication (AEJMC).

At Maryland, Dr. Steiner is chair of the Merrill College’s promotion and tenure committee and a member of the President’s Commission on Women’s Issues, and a Research Integrity Officer (RIO). She has served on several other University committees, including the grievance committee. Having participated in the inaugural ADVANCE program she has been a mentor to faculty in several departments/schools at UMD, as well as participating as a mentor in programs outside the university. She speaks frequently about research ethics and journal publishing (and the problem of predatory journals).

Comments from Participants

“They made a huge difference in my professional life at UMD.”

“One of the things I have loved about ADVANCE in the last year is having a context for talking with colleagues about how we balance our personal and professional lives.”

“Through this program, I have learned strategies on teaching and service, rules and regulations on tenure process, and research and teaching resources on campus... I believe many junior faculty will be benefitted for their careers by joining this program.”

“I loved getting to connect with other women from diverse disciplines across the school in a similar career stage!”

The ADVANCE Program for Inclusive Excellence is funded by the Provost’s Office, Office of Diversity & Inclusion, Division of Research, Academic Colleges, the Graduate School, and Undergraduate School.
